The long room at Loft 604 — fourteen north sash windows, maple floor, and the original press columns left in place

A printing works from 1908, converted by Container Co. in 2016 and barely touched since — which in a loft this size is the whole argument. Loft 604 holds the north face of the sixth floor: one 28-foot room under twelve-foot ceilings, two bedrooms set behind it rather than carved out of it, and fourteen steel sash windows that were rebuilt, not replaced.
